THE [NUMB. 829.] South-
Carolina Gazette.
From MONDAY March 26th, to MONDAY April 2d, 1750.

LONDON, November 16.

This day His Majeſty went to the houſe of peers with the uſual ſtate, attended in his coach by the D. of Richmond, and E. of Aſhburnham, and opened the ſeſſion of parliament with the following ſpeech:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

IT is with particular pleaſure that I now meet you in parliament, at a time, when the compleat re eſtabliſhment of a general peace has reſtored to my people the bleſſings of [quiet and] tranquillity. The good effects reſulting from hence do already appear in the flouriſhing condition of our commerce, and the riſe of the publick credit; which naturally lay the ſureſt foundations of an increaſe of ſtrength, and of laſting proſperity, to my kingdoms. I have not fail'd this ſummer to make uſe of every opportunity of cementing and ſecuring the peace; and it is my firm reſolution to do every thing in my power for the preſervation of it, and religiouſly to adhere to the engagements I have enter'd into.

I have the ſatisfaction to acquaint you, that I have found all the contracting powers in the definitive treaty of Aix la Chapelle, as well as the reſt of my allies, in the ſame good diſpoſition; and have no reaſon to doubt of their concurrence in the ſame deſirable end. It is unneceſſary for me to tell you, that nothing can contribute ſo much to the continuance and improvement of this happy ſituation of Affairs, as the effectual ſupporting of that weight and influence, which properly belong to the crown of Great Britain.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons.

I have order'd the proper officers to prepare and lay before you the eſtimates for the ſervice of the enſuing year. I deſire ſuch ſupplies only, as ſhall be found neceſſary for the ſecurity and welfare of the nation: and in that view, I muſt earneſtly recommend to you the maintaining of my Fleet in its full ſtrength; and that you would be watchful to improve any opportunity of putting the national debt in a method of being reduced, with a ſtrict regard to public faith, and private property.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I have nothing to deſire of you, but that you would with unanimity and diſpatch purſue ſuch meaſures, as may be moſt conducive to your own real and laſting intereſt. Whatever good laws you ſhall propoſe for the advancement of our trade and navigation, and for encouraging a ſpirit of induſtry in all parts of the kingdom, will be extremely acceptable to me: and you may reſt aſſured, that I ſhall always look upon the true greatneſs of my crown, and the ſtability of my government, as inſeparably united with the happineſs and proſperity of my people.

The LORDS ADDRESS.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Lords ſpiritual and temporal, in parliament aſſembled, beg leave to return your Majeſty our humble thanks for your moſt gracious ſpeech from the throne.

The good effects reſulting to your kingdoms from the compleat re eſtabliſhment of the General Tranquillity, which are ſo ſenſibly felt in our commerce and public credit, are the moſt intereſting ſubject of our congratulations to your Majeſty: but we ſhould fall ſhort of thoſe ſentiments which we feel in our breaſts, on this occaſion, if we did not, at the ſame time, gratefully acknowledge, that, under the divine protection, theſe bleſſings are owing to your royal care and vigilance for the good of your people.

The ſame gracious concern for our welfare, and for the repoſe of Europe, has induced your Majeſty to improve every opportunity to cement and ſecure that peace, which has been ſo lately reſtor'd to us; and it gives us great ſatisfaction to be inform'd, that this good diſpoſition has been ſhewn by all the contracting powers in the definitive treaty of Aix la Chapelle, and by the reſt of your Majeſty's allies.

Your Majeſty's wiſe admonition, confirm'd by paſt experience, convinces us, that the effectual maintaining of that weight and influence, which properly belong to the crown of Great-Britain, is eſſential to the duration and improvement of this happy ſituation. Our intereſt therefore, as well as our duty, obliges us unfeignedly to aſſure your Majeſty of our hearty and zealous concurrence and ſupport, in all ſuch meaſures as ſhall be moſt conducive to this great end, as well as to the preſervation of the peace.

To keep up the naval force of this kingdom in full vigour; to protect and advance its trade and navigation; to encourage and extend a ſpirit of induſtry in the nation; are objects truly becoming your royal wiſdom; and your Majeſty's perſeverance in the purſuit of them will always ſecure to you the hearts and affections of your ſubjects. Your Majeſty could not have given a more acceptable proof of your fix'd attention to their welfare, than by recommending theſe conſiderations, with ſo much earneſtneſs, to your parliament. The leaſt return we can make for ſo much goodneſs is, to promiſe your majeſty, on our part, the moſt ready aſſiſtance and concurrence in effectuating the proper means for theſe ſalutary purpoſes.

Permit us, from the bottom of our hearts, to give your Majeſty the ſtrongeſt aſſurances, that we conſider the true greatneſs of your crown, and the ſtability of your government, as being, under God, the ſolid foundation of the felicity of your people. From this principle we will never depart; nothing being more certain, than that theſe kingdoms can never be happy, but in the preſervation of your ſacred perſon, and the ſecurity of the proteſtant ſucceſſion in your royal family; which we are determin'd always to defend and maintain.

His Majeſty's moſt gracious ANSWER.

My LORDS,

THE aſſurances you give me in this dutiful and affectionate addreſs, are ſuch as deſerve my moſt hearty thanks. The ſentiments which you expreſs, concerning the preſent ſituation of affairs, are extremely agreeable to me; and cannot fail to give great ſatisfaction both, at home, and abroad.

The Humble ADDRESS of the Houſe of Commons to the King.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE your majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Commons of Great-Britain in parliament aſſembled, return to Majeſty our ſincere and hearty thanks for your moſt gracious ſpeech from the throne.

We beg leave to congratulate your Majeſty on the compleat re eſtabliſhment of a general peace, whereby the bleſſings of tranquility are reſtored to your people; and to expreſs our ſatisfaction at the good diſpoſition, which your Majeſty has found in all your allies, as well as in the contracting powers in the definitive treaty of Aix la Chapelle, to continue and preſerve ſo deſirable a ſituation, from whence we have not only the comfortable proſpect of future eaſe, but may likewiſe promiſe ourſelves, through the flouriſhing condition of our commerce, and natural riſe of public credit, a gradual increaſe of our national ſtrength.

With a zeal and gratitude indiſpenſably due to the many inſtances of your Majeſty's paternal affection for your people, we acknowledge your great wiſdom in recommending to us the reduction of the national debt, as an object worthy of our moſt ſerious attention tention; and we assure your Majesty, we will apply ourselves with all possible diligence, to find out the propereſt means to accompliſh ſo great and neceſſary a work, with the ſtricteſt regard to publick faith, and private property.

This houſe, earneſtly deſirous effectually to promote the mutual and inſeparable intereſt of your Majeſty, and your people, will grant ſuch ſupplies to your Majeſty as ſhall be found neceſſary for the ſecurity and welfare of the nation, which cannot be better provided for, than by maintaining the fleet in ſuch a condition, as may enable your Majeſty to preſerve that weight and influence, which properly belong to the crown of Great-Britain; and we will do all that in us lies, to encourage a general ſpirit of induſtry, and advance our trade and navigation, the two great ſources of the wealth and ſtrength of this kingdom.

Your faithful commons aſſure your Majeſty, they are fully ſenſible, that their preſent and future proſperity and happineſs depend, under God, upon the ſtability of your Majeſty's government, and the ſucceſſion eſtabliſhed in your royal family.

His Majeſty's moſt Gracious ANSWER.

GENTLEMEN,

I thank you moſt heartily for this very kind and dutiful addreſs. You may be aſſured of all poſſible returns of affection from me. I have nothing ſo much at heart, as to ſee my people flouriſhing and happy under my government.

[The Lds addreſs paſſed unanimouſly, and the Commons without a diviſion. It was obſerved that both addreſſes agree in leaving unnoticed the words [quiet and] towards the beginning of the ſpeech; and the Lds ſay nothing of the wiſdom of reducing the national debt.]

From the Gentleman's Magazine, for Nov. laſt. Foreign Advices.

SWEDEN, &c.

ON advice that the Ruſſians had given orders for diſarming their ſhips of war at Cronſtadt, and Revel, the like orders, with reſpect to our fleet, have been ſent to Carelſcroon, and a ſtop has alſo been put to the ſending a large body of troops into Finland.

Copenhagen, Nov. 21. Baron de Korff, the Empreſs of Ruſſia's miniſter, and Mr. Titley, his Britannick Majeſty's, in a conference with M. de Schulin, ſecretary of ſtate for foreign affairs, were acquainted by his majeſty's order, that the treaty of alliance lately renewed between this court and that of Sweden, contain'd nothing derogatory to the treaties which his majeſty had before enter'd into with their principals.

GERMANY.

Vienna, Nov. 19. Several regiments are ordered to march for Lombardy. And new levies are carried on with extraordinary vigour, both here and by the princes and ſtates of Italy: All which as pretended to preſerve peace, in that part of the world.——They talk of erecting a tenth electorate in the empire: the candidates for which, are the houſes of Heſſe Caſſel and Saxe Gotha, which latter formerly enjoy'd that honour, till it was transferred by Ch. V. to the family of Saxe Dreſden; and as it now has the intereſt of the elector of Hanover, that of Heſſe Caſſel will probably be ſupported by the houſes of Bourbon and Brandenburgh.—The Empreſs Queen [illegible] to have concluded a new and much ſtronger treaty with the [illegible]eſs of Ruſſia, than that enter'd into 3 years ago, they having engaged themſelves now mutually to aid and aſſiſt each other with all their forces.

ITALY.

Advices from Malta ſay, it has been lately diſcover'd, that the Bailaw of Rhodes had provided a great quantity of poiſon, which the ſlaves were to mix in the coffee and chocolate of the knights, and in the aqueducts, of whoſe water the bakers make the bread. ——A defenſive treaty has been concluded between France, Spain, and Sardinia, in which are comprehended the K. of the Two Sicilies, the D. of Modena, the republic of Genoa, and the Infant D. of Parma and Placentia, as well for the ſtates which he actually poſſeſſes, as thoſe which he may hereafter acquire; and their Catholic and moſt Chriſtian Majeſties, by virtue of this treaty, engage to furniſh 30,000 men to ſuch of the contracting parties as ſhall want aſſiſtance.——The Sardinian envoy at the Britiſh court has inform'd the miniſtry, that his majeſty, in concluding this treaty, had not leſſen'd his reſolution to obſerve his treaties of friendſhip and alliance with the other powers of Europe.

SPAIN.

The inſurrection at the Carraccas in the W. Indies, ſeems to be much the concern of the government, ſince 3000 regular troops are order'd thither to ſuppreſs it.—They write alſo from Jamaica that they have received advice, that the inhabitants of Santa Fee, in New-Mexico, have revolted from the Spaniſh government, and appointed officers of their own body.——Mr. Keene continues his negotiations with this court; and his Portugueſe majeſty, having warmly intereſted himſelf in his buſineſs, the Britiſh miniſter at Liſbon has preſented him with a letter of thanks, which was very graciouſly received.——Whether Mr. Keene will ſucceed or not, his countrymen have evacuated the iſland of Rattan, where they had made a ſettlement.

FRANCE.

Boulogne, Thomas Bevan, who lately eſcaped from England is arrived here, to eſtabliſh a woollen manufactury; many ſmugglers alſo outlaw'd and others flock hither, and are forming themſelves into a company, to promote the practice of ſmuggling; and we are ſetting up a manufactory for making hats; ſhips daily arriving with coney-wool. Orders are alſo given for making a canal from Boulogne to St. Omers, by which the Netherlands may be cheaply ſerved with cloth, hats, and other commodities from this place.

The naval armaments of this kingdom go on with great vigour both in Europe and America; the comptroller general of the finances has lately paid to the miniſter of the marines half a million ſterling in ready money, to be remitted to Rochefort, Breſt, and Toulon, where arrived lately two large Dutch fly boats with cables, maſts, &c. for 4 men of war almoſt finiſhed; at Rochefort two ſhips, one of 80 guns, called Le Brave, and another of 74, will be ready to put to ſea in February.
